Norman Baker (HIMSELF)

MOUNT PLEASANT—stopped there Sunday evening for supper—about 8 P. M.—stopped car near center park square—a beautiful fountain in the center of the park attracted my attention—looked like a transparent fountain—investigated—found it of concrete—with light effects that in my estimation for beauty surpasses THE HALF MILLION DOLLAR FOUNTAIN in Grant park, Chicago—it's beautiful—shows what can be done by a little ingenuity—a fountain like that should be in every city park—especially where there are no rivers at the park edge—the water gives an effect that's refreshing—it's the prettiest fountain I EVER SAW—and I've seen many—not so very expensive either—the idea can be worked for large or small—one thing is sure—when you see that fountain—you will never see any other kind—THINK OF MOUNT PLEASANT—It's memory by contrast.

WELLMAN, IOWA—some of you folks shoot down a copy of your local paper—I have never yet read what Mr. Coffey had to say about that meeting—I do know that he and your marshal had a little spat—your marshal is 100 per cent—don't let anyone turn you against him—he is for his community 100 per cent—that is more than I can say about another fellow—I hear that the editor now blames the marshal for assisting you citizens with the speakers stand—your marshal believes that all citizens of a community should have the right to hear and see what they please—that they should not be dominated by the editor of a weekly—if you want, just read this paper and we will gladly give all space necessary for news of your city as soon as enough subscribers take this paper—we will give you more than now—and the news will come to you daily—not weekly—in other words if Coffey should happen to pull a stand out on Saturday evening—Monday morning you read about it in the Free Press—or Sunday morning—as it is you wait until the middle of the week, I believe—think it over—the news while it is news. Is that fellow Durlan still in Wellman buying your cows? If so, what DOES HE PAY YOU—funny fellow, he does not want you to hear the truth but still comes around buying your cows—just BITING THE HAND THAT FEEDS HIM.

GOVERNMENT statisticians are now saying—that the farmer can solve some of his own problems—certainly he can—HE CAN SOLVE THEM ALL—get in one farm organization—cut out all others—and all problems will disappear—AND NOT UNTIL THEN.

BLOOMFIELD—I enjoyed your nice crowd—figured at least 1500 of your folks were there—sorry if I kept you too long and made you late for chores and supper—there is much we must accomplish—think over what I said and write me a letter if you are willing to follow the plan and organize the FEDERATED FARM ORGANIZATION, or single unit plan and win.

POOR MASS. FARMERS—over in Massachusetts the director of Animal Industry just issued this statement—"we serve an ultimatum on the farmers and if they don't test their cattle they cannot sell milk—then they go out of business if they fight us"—he says—"we have tested in past two years—89,942 cattle 22,508 reacted"—that's nearly one fourth of all—keep that up and soon Massachusetts will be the people save them—and why didn't you put a bone diagram under their brains so they could not slip down to be walked or sat upon? If cost the people $600,000 to do the testing—that's a good way to squander the people's money—but they are doing the same in Iowa, and still the milk carries T. B. germs just the same—test or no test.

Baker Explains One Unit Farm Organization Tells About Attempts To Block His Program

Crowd of 1,500 Hears Muscatine Man at Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD, Ia.—(Special)—Speaking here Sunday afternoon before an audience of some 1,500 persons, Norman Baker of Muscatine, outlined the Baker plan of farm relief and gave the crowd some interesting facts of the efforts being made by politicians, organized capitalists and kindred groups to prevent the completion of the program. His message was given a good reception by his hearers.

Sunday's meeting, which was held at the fair grounds, was transferred from Drakesville, in the same county, Bloomfield is about 125 miles from Muscatine. The Baker plan of farm relief is simply the organizing of all the farmers into one group, doing away with the many and varied farm organizations now operating and presenting a united front to the opposing forces. Mr. Baker said. Money now received from the government for the operation of the various groups could be placed in a fund from which the farmers could borrow against their crops and when the produce was harvested, pay back the loan with a small amount of interest, the speaker declared.

Give Farmers Power—This would enable the farmers to set the price of their grain and not be forced to accept what was offered by the market. They would also control the political situation if they would be careful to elect only men to office who have proven themselves as friends of the farmer, Mr. Baker stated. The speaker said he held no malice against any farm group organization but believed the plan of combining the farmers into one body would work for the best interests of all concerned. He pointed out that the farmers control a large percentage of the buying power of the nation and declared that if the farmers were taken care of, the factors and city merchant would profit as well.

Efforts Divided Now—In speaking of the various farm organizations now operating, the speaker said that powers which are seeking to oppose the farmers use the divided interests to deny the farmers any aid whatsoever.

Politicians who make promises before elections and neglect to keep them after the votes are cast, were denounced by the speaker. He said many of them were using the farmers as a football and vast sums of

GANDHI VERY QUIET ON LONG OCEAN VOYAGE

India's Nationalist Leader En Route to London Parley

ABOARD S. S. RAJPUTANA—(INS)—Obvious to the stars of fellow-passengers, Mahatma M. K. Gandhi today devoted himself to his weekly period of silence and meditation as the S. S. Rajputana, carrying the Indian nationalist leader to London for the round table conference, passed through the Suez canal to Port Said. Immediately after boarding the liner following a brief stop at Suez, Gandhi took his place at his spinning wheel on a hard bench near the stern of the liner.

Near him, sitting cross-legged on the deck, were Mahatma's daughter, of a British admiral whose admiral for the Mathatma caused her to devote her life to catering to his needs, and the Pandit Mohiyava, his closest friend and inseparable companion.

For hours they sat in absolute silence. From Mahatma's work at his spinning wheel, lost in rapt concentration. Frequently the thread broke between his slim and nervous fingers. Each time he patiently knotted it and began again.

Smith, alleged bigamist charged with arson and burning a corpse in connection with an alleged conspiracy to defraud insurance companies of $60,000 in life insurance, Tuesday may have the opportunity to keep his promise to police to "tell everything to the grand jury." Sheriff Clint Keck of Dallas county today indicated Smith will probably be taken before the jury Tuesday although he stated his announcement was not to be taken as a final decision in the matter. Mrs. Edith Smith, John's first wife, was brought to Adell Sunday by State Agent Myron Tullar from Des Moines, but she did not see her husband. Following a short conference here with authorities of Dallas county, Mrs. Smith and Tullar left for an unannounced destination.

OUTLAW CHILE NAVY GIVES UP

Peace Conference Is Called by Officials Of Government

SANTIAGO—(INS)—The revolt of the Chilean navy ended today with the unconditional surrender of all units of the outlaw fleet, following a vicious bombardment of the rebel seamen by loyal government airplane crews. Two of the naval vessels, the truck cruiser De La Torre, and one submarine were disabled by the aerial bombardment and are now tied up at the Coquimbo naval base. All other units of the fleet were brought into Valparaiso by their surrendering crews and turned over to the government forces. "A peace conference" was called by the government and the leaders of the seamen at which it will probably be determined what punishment shall be meted out to the rebels.

Miss Cronin, her mother said, had attended a wedding yesterday with the chauffeur. Returning from it together they had been in an automobile accident, according to Catherine's sister, Blanche.

A. F. of L. Secretary Also Raps Company 'Unions'

CHICAGO—(INS)—An attack on company "unions," the labor injunction and the so-called "yellow dog" contracts, was made today by Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in a monster Labor Day celebration under the auspices of the Chicago Federation of Labor at Soldier Field stadium.

"There is no freedom under this system the employer dictates who shall meet him in wage conferences and workers are denied the right to organize and select representatives of their own choosing," Morrison said. "The company 'union' has replaced the so-called 'open shop' and the American plan as a means to control workers and dictate their lives."

Referring to the benefits of high wages, Morrison declared that the value of high wages was no longer questioned because wider diffusion of wealth raised living standards. "It changes a community of rent-

Lewis Says All Must Share In Profits of The Industries

Addresses Labor Day Celebration Given At Des Moines

DES MOINES—(INS)—"There can be no permanent progress or prosperity until the economic axis of capitalism revolves on a sound basis of equitable distribution of profits," John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared here today.

Speaking before a mass meeting of Labor day celebrators here Lewis followed this statement with the charge that "what is more, profits as a whole must be large enough to enable all human factors engaged in each single industry to share the profit gains in sufficient amount to maintain relative purchasing power." Had this essential basic principle been observed, he said, droughts, insect plagues, mechanization of industry and "various other revolutionary changes in the scheme of things" would not have destroyed the purchasing power of the masses. The long endurance of the present economic depression, he declared, is an indication of the success of "wage deflations."

Earning Powers Decreased—"The earning power of the masses," Lewis declared, "has been decreased so far below that necessary to sustain consuming requirements of our productive facilities that our people can not now earn sufficient money to buy back prosperity." The United Mine Workers official pointed to the Bituminous coal industry as an example of the result of this situation. No other American industry is as sorely distressed as Bituminous coal, he said. Yet despite its "enormous constraint upon other industries and the two and one-half million people directly dependent upon it," the industry has failed over and over again to evolve a single plan to improve its status and

Says That National Conscience Touched By Conditions

OTTUMWA, Ia.—(INS)—National conscience is "deeply touched" by the distressing economic and social conditions now prevailing throughout the country, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared today in a radio address broadcast over a nationwide network.

He said that because of this unusual situation, Labor Day was fraught with new significance. "So much depends upon earning power and the ability to buy that the entire nation finds itself involved in the industrial problems which have overtaken the workers," Green said. "The social and economic structure of the nation is seriously affected when millions of working men and women are involuntarily forced into idleness."

"The great farm population, those who are identified with the agricultural industry, is also engaged, as never before, in a serious consideration of its social and economic problems. The interests of the mass of the people who work for wages are so closely related to the interests of those who constitute the farm population that it is scarcely possible to draw a line of distinction."

Green declared that the maintenance of an American standard of living depends upon income and purchasing power.

Would Cut Down Distress

"Social and political unrest, human disaster, criminal brutality, flagrant disregard for the law can be minimized through the elimination of poverty and the restoration of economic order," he said. "Based upon this point of view unemployment, with all its serious consequences, together with the unemployment condition prevailing in the agricultural industry, becomes a social as well as an economic problem."

Green asserted that American workers "abhor the imposition of a dole regardless of any guise under which it may be bestowed," and they "shrink from a consideration of its demoralizing and degrading influence."

N. BAKER MAKES TRIP BY PLANE

Talks at Spring Lake And Toronto; Flies To Both Places

Leaving Muscatine by airplane shortly after 9:30 a. m. today, Norman Baker faced two speaking dates. The first was scheduled to be given at Spring Lake, in Green county, at 1:30 p. m. and the next at Toronto, Ia., many miles from Spring Lake, in the evening. A distance of about 450 miles will be covered by airplane. The ship is piloted by W. M. Groves, manager of the local airport. On Sept. 9, Mr. Baker is scheduled to deliver an address at the Louisa county fair grounds at Columbus Junction. He will speak at 1:30 p. m. On the following day, Sept. 10, Mr. Baker will deliver an address at Ollie, Ia., at a meeting of the Modern Woodmen of America. Mr. Baker was scheduled to speak at Ollie on August 26, but the engagement had to be cancelled because of a previous engagement at La Porte, Ia.

BAKER EXPLAINS HIS FARM PLAN AT BLOOMFIELD

Tells About Attempts To Block Program In Address

The taxpayers' money was spent uselessly by office holders.

In speaking upon the current rumor that he is about to announce his candidacy for governorship of Iowa, Mr. Baker said he has no political aspirations. He added, however, that he was in the governor's chair, many changes would be brought about for the benefit of the people. He said he had several plans in mind which he would put into effect which, he believed, would save considerable money for residents of Iowa.

Tells Of Experience

The speaker not only told of the efforts he has made to aid the farmers but recounted many of his experiences during which time he had been forced to make repeated fights for his personal rights. The same groups which are now opposing him from telling the truth over radio station K-TNT, the speaker said, were the same groups which were able to close the radio station, Mr. Baker told his audience.

When the radio station was closed, the speaker declared, the mouthpiece of the farmer was done away with. But, he said, the fight of the farmer is being carried on through columns of the Free Press which he, together with about 1,100 stockholders, had organized when he foresaw the closing of the radio station.

The powerful medical association is opposing him, Mr. Baker said, because he dared to step on the toes of this organization by exposing medical fallacies. This organization has made repeated efforts to close the Baker Hospital at Muscatine, where cancer is being cured, the speaker declared.

Mr. Baker said that when his half million dollar suit for damages against the American Medical Association comes up for hearing in Davenport this month, that he will then know he was telling the truth when he said that cancer is curable at the Baker hospital.

Previous to Mr. Baker's talk an entertainment was presented by the "K-TNT Kids," and the popularity of the radio station was demonstrated in the applause of the audience for these entertainers.

FEW TO ATTEND G. A. R. SESSIONS

Muscatine Post Will Be Represented at National Meet

Muscatine will be represented by several members of the Norman Shelby post at the national encampment of the G. A. R. to be held at Des Moines, Sept. 13 to 17. J. H. Miller, commander of the local post, and Gus Elchoff have already signified their intention of going to the encampment, and others are expected to make the trip.

Power veterans than ever before will attend the encampment this year. It is believed, as the past year has seen the decadence of what was once a mighty army into a small sect of stragglers, a large part of the surviving veterans are too feeble to make the journey to the encampment.

Due to the increased membership in subsidiary organizations, it is expected, however, that approximately 10,000 persons will be at the encampment. The Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Sons of Union Veterans, etc., auxiliary, and the Daughters of Union Veterans, have sent in large registration lists, and hotel accommodations have already been reserved by more than 2,000 persons from all parts of the country.

The Iowa G. A. R. organization which will entertain the national convention, is experiencing difficulty in finding committee members among the ranks of veterans, and most of the work is falling on officials of the auxiliaries. The program will be held at the Shrine temple which seats 12,000. Music will be provided by the United States Army band from Washington.

Four Teams in Close Wins in Park Tourney

In the big upset of the morning's play, the Muscatine Elks were eliminated from future competition in the tournament at the hands of the Automatic Gravel team on the old diamond, 3 to 1. The game was close throughout with each team collecting five safe bails.

A bunch of Pig's Tire Shop and Orange Squeeze players combined to play under the name of Nichols and were shut out by Columbus Junction on the new diamond, 4 to 0. The Nichols team could collect but two hits during the five inning game.

Wapello advanced into the second round of play by a 3 to 0 victory over the Fruitland team on the old diamond, 3 to 1. Wapello out-hit its rivals, 5 to 4 and played good ball to take the close win.

In the other game played on the new diamond the Letts aggregation won a close six inning engagement from the Illinois City players, 3 to 2.

This afternoon's play was to begin at 1 o'clock with the Fat Men of Muscatine meeting the Slim Men of Muscatine. At 2 o'clock the Automatic Gravel team was to meet the Wapello team, and at 3 o'clock the Columbus Junction team was to meet the Fruitland team.

FARM HOME IS ROBBED SUNDAY

Thief Takes Shotgun, Rifles, Clothes, at Burke Residence

The farm home of Elmer Burke, one mile north of Pleasant Prairie, was entered some time Sunday evening by a thief who stole a shotgun, three rifles and practically all of Mr. Burke's clothing. The burglar apparently had knowledge that the family was absent from home.

The robbery was committed before 12-30, which was the time the Burke family returned home to find the house had been ransacked and left in confusion. Entrance was effected through the back door of the home. The thief took a large assortment of shirts, neckties and other articles of wearing apparel.

Sheriff Fred B. Nesper, to whom the burglary was reported, was investigating the robbery today.

MRS. L. DEGRAFF SUCCUMBS HERE

Mrs. Laura DeGraff, 82, a resident of this city for the past 30 years, died Sunday noon at her home, 610 East Ninth street. She had been ill for a long time. Dr. B. E. Eversmeyer was the attending physician.

firmly stated, left his home at the age of 14 years. Nothing was ever heard of him since. His father also used the name of Powers in his correspondence with women.

Both the father and the mother were said to be dead now, only a sister was reported to have survived.

Suspicion that another unknown crime lay upon the threshold of the investigation was created today when it was learned that at the time Powers arrived here to marry "Lulu" Strother, he brought a trunk filled with women's clothing.

For the fourth time in almost as many days, Mr. Powers and her mother, Mrs. Belle Strother, were grilled by Chief of Police Clarence Duckworth and City Detective Carl Southern.

The women were as loathe to answer questions as on previous visits to their home and in many cases where they did talk their statements proved contradictory.

Additional clothing and property belonging to Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., one of the five victims of Powers, was seized in the home of the women. Also a large quantity of women's clothing belonging to Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., another victim, was found on the premises.

WORK RESUMED BY MINISTERS

Many Local Pastors Return to Pulpits After Vacation

Muscatine ministers have now returned from their vacations and regular church schedules are resumed at the local churches.

Communion rites were observed at the First Baptist church at the morning service, and the pastor, the Rev. Vernon L. Shultz, used as his sermon theme, "Rethinking Calvary." In the evening he spoke on "Prophetic Significance of Recent World Happenings."

The First Christian church congregation worshipped in their new building, the former German Congregational church at Fifth and Cedar streets, Sunday morning, which time plans were discussed for the church dedication to be held Sunday, Sept. 20. Dr. John Both, head of the church section of the Illinois state board of Christian work, and the Rev. J. A. Dillingard of Des Moines, state secretary, will be present for the occasion.

Communion rites formed the featured part of the Walnut Street Baptist service Sunday morning and the minister, the Rev. Pieter Smit, used as his topic "Christ's Second Coming."

The Rev. R. B. Randall occupied his pulpit at the First Presbyterian church after a several week's vacation in Philadelphia and other places. He used as his sermon theme, "Some Observations of a Summer Trip."

Unusual Topics Discussed

The Rev. Ira Hawley of the United Brethren church spoke on "Spiritual Gifts to be Desired and Because of Their Iniquity" at the two Sunday services.

"Declaration of Faith" and "Rock" were the subjects of the Rev. R. B. Mitchell's sermons at the Four-square chapel church. "When Winter Comes" and "Jesus, the Eternal Priest and King," were discussed by the First Methodist pastor, the Rev. Benjamin F. Schwartz and special music was furnished by the choir.

At the Bethel A. M. E. church Sunday morning, the Rev. S. L. Bean closed his pastorate, as he leaves this week for Des Moines to attend the annual conference. He then expects to be transferred to another charge.

Firestone Radio Program Will Be Resumed Tonight

The "Voice of Firestone" returns to the air tonight to inaugurate a weekly program over the nationwide N. B. C. red network with a short talk on the "Romance of Rubber" by Harvey S. Firestone, in which the story of the development of rubber will be told. James Melton, noted radio artist, will be the tenor soloist, with Gladys Rice as the soprano soloist.

The Firestone main quartet of outstanding singers, with Merriam Day, noted conductor, with the 30-piece Firestone orchestra, will also be heard on the program. Alois Havrilla is the conductor.

CITY'S LABOR DAY SPECTACLE IS UNDERWAY

Kittenball, Fireworks And Pageant on Program Today

Kittenball games this morning, a pageant this evening, band concerts through the supper hour and a fireworks display as a finale, are features of the Labor Day celebration being held today at Weed park.

An added feature of the athletic program is a football game between fat men and lean men, which was scheduled for 1 p. m.

The pageant will be presented at 7 p. m. About 300 persons, including representatives of the United Men, Trades and Labor Assembly, Boy Scouts and the American Legion, will take part in the pageant. Musical settings will be played by the Muscatine Concert band under the direction of F. C. Mannhardt, director.

The Muscatine tribe of the Red Men is also holding its annual picnic at the park.

A fireworks display, to be given immediately after the pageant is presented, will bring the program to a close. The supply of fireworks, however from the Fourth of July display, has been augmented by the purchase of additional pieces.

Although the crowd which flocked to the park was not large this morning, it is expected several thousand persons from this vicinity will view the historical pageant and the fireworks display tonight.

When the Coach Line company announced that buses would make 15 minute trips to the park today, the concern ordinarily operates a 20 minute schedule to the East Hill district.

NEW BOSTON TO HAVE A BRIDGE

Permit Is Given to Connect Illinois and Iowa

WAPELLO, Ia.—(Special)—Announcement that a permit for the building of the New Boston bridge, connecting Iowa and Illinois, had been received from the war department, was made here today.

The bridge is to be constructed of one steel span, 620 feet in length, to be located at the Illinois end, and the balance will be in concrete spans. The bridge will be 22 feet wide. The last 900 feet on the Iowa side will be an embankment connecting with the U. S. levee.

A gravel road will be constructed to connect the Iowa shore with primary road No. 99 at Oakville. At the New Boston end, a cement road goes directly east connecting with U. S. highway No. 32 leading to Chicago and points east.

The legal details are being handled by Attorney William Hillier of Oakville for the bridge, and he and Roy Salladay are in charge of the matter on the Iowa side. Approval for the bridge permit was placed before the war department about the middle of May, and it was finally approved after a number of changes. The state highway commission of Iowa and Illinois also approved the application.

Queer Inscriptions Appear on Tomb Stones in Cemetery Here

Strange Messages Put on Grave Markers at Greenwood

"A city so silent and lone, Maggie," "Where the young and the gay and the blest," "In polished white mansions of stone," "Have each found a place of rest."

Greenwood cemetery is in reality "a city so silent and lone," a graveyard where some 17,000 people have been buried since the first grave was dug there in about the year 1838. At that time the cemetery, as well as the city of Muscatine, was known as Blomington.

When the city was given its present cognomen, however, the name of the cemetery was changed to Greenwood.

The cemetery grounds at first comprised only a small portion of its present area. The grounds then included only the eastern portion of the present cemetery. Its original eastern boundary was about Cedar street, and the western boundary is, but the western edge was about a block east of the present Greenwood chapel.

Additions have been made to the grounds from time to time, however, until now it comprises all the area from about a block west of Busch street to Fletcher avenue and from Lucas street to the bluffs overlooking the Mississippi river. Although the total area is about 130 acres, some 30 acres are not in use now as a burial ground.

Many Different Markers

Considerable changes in the styles of tomb stones is noted in the cemetery. The more ancient ones, besides bearing the inscription stating the name, age, date of birth and death of the one whose grave they mark, frequently bear an additional message.

On one of them, marking the grave of Henry Aeyers, who died in 1899 is written, "Inventor of the Aeyers Cabbage Cutter." One the back of a more modern tombstone the inscription, "Let us get out of the rut of the dark ages which have owning, shifting workers to home-owning groups whose children are in school and whose parents take an interest in civic affairs," he said.

Quoting figures of the department of labor showing there were 2,000,000 more persons unemployed this year than in the same period last year, Morrison said that to these figures could be added at least 1,000,000 whom investigators agree are continually unemployed in this country. He said this did not include part time workers "who earn barely enough to secure a precarious living."

"The total of over 6,000,000 unemployed means at least 30,000,000 persons, or approximately one-fourth of our population, who are not continually assured food and shelter," he said.

Morrison charged the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce had presented no remedy for unemployment, while labor had presented 15 plans to deal with the question.

SINCLAIR LEWIS WINS IN COURT

RENO, Nev.—(INS)—Sinclair Lewis, novelist, today had a reduction in alimony after the supreme court of Nevada had affirmed a district court order.

Lewis, under the terms of the court order, was authorized to reduce his alimony payment to Grace Heger Lewis from 1,000 a month to $200 with adjustments every January so that she will receive one-fourth of his annual gross income.

WIFE IS HELD IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

LINCOLN, Ill.—(INS)—Mrs. Violet Walters is being held in custody here today as the result of the fatal shooting of her husband, Joseph, 41, Sunday night. The shooting is said to have taken place during a family quarrel.

Police claim that according to Mrs. Walters' statement, Walters was looking for the gun when she pointed it at him and was off.

Walters was grading foreman of the Hoffman Construction company, state contractors.

Inscription Obliterated

On several of the stones the inscriptions, even to the name and dates, have been partially obliterated by the weather. One message starts with the words, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord," but the winter snows and summer rains and the heat of many suns have worn the stone so smooth that the remainder of the message is illegible.

One of the oldest stones in the cemetery bears the following poem: "Remember, friend, as you pass by, As you are now, so once was I; As I am now, so you must be; Prepare for death and follow me."

The grave stones are of almost every conceivable size, shape and description. There are flat ones, nothing more than marble slabs placed upright at the head of a grave which contains the remains of someone, perhaps long forgotten; there are heavy, substantial monuments of white and brown stone, well preserved throughout their many years in wind and sun; there is one which resembles a tree broken off about 12 feet from the ground, complete in every detail even to the small branches and bark and another one upon which the pictures of three persons who are buried in the lot appear, opposite the inscription of their name, date of birth and death.

stabilize production and sales, alleged Lewis.

He pointed out that Bituminous coal regions for the most part are no longer consumers of the products of American manufacturers, except for the bare food requirements and clothing.

People Cannot Buy

"Although in need of almost every conceivable article of merchandise," stated Lewis, "the people of the coal regions can not respond to the 'buy now and stimulate business' appeal. Their purchasing power has been destroyed. They are the victims of a low wage conspiracy," he charged.

"For the most part our entire industrial structure has failed miserably to meet the exigency," declared Lewis. "Vague platitudes is the best obtainable from bankers, economists and industrial leaders as to when the situation will improve, while the majority both in public and private exhibit a hopeless apathy."

Lewis warned that changes must be brought about soon. He pointed out that "Multitudes of hungry and homeless are not the requisites upon which a democracy is founded."

People To Take Responsibility

The mine workers president urged that it is the duty of business to provide and promote efficient regulation of wages rates and working hours and under humane conditions, essential to the successful discharge of its social duties," he said.

Mass production, he declared, will not be permitted to permanently level the masses to want and poverty if the American working men unite against such a pitfall.

"The American worker demands of American industry that its operation, its wages rates and working hours and under humane conditions, essential to the successful discharge of its social duties," he said.

"Widespread fluctuations of wages and prices in the business of supplying the people's wants, and in wages and employment, must give way to stability and dependability, if the American working man is to enjoy an even flow of production and consumption."

"The complex industrial system of American makes prosperity dependent upon high wages and regularity of employment. Mass production can only be maintained by a purchasing power in the home market sufficient to make this possible."

Bail Provided by Three Nabbed Here By Cops Saturday

Three men arrested Saturday evening obtained release today by posting bail and four others, also taken into custody Saturday, face the prospects of spending Labor day in jail through their failure to provide bonds.

William "Fiddle" Green, arrested when a squad of city and county officers raided his home on Maple avenue and Harry Overly, who was in Green's home at the time, obtained their release. Both men were charged with maintaining liquor nuisance. Overly, it is claimed, destroyed evidence in the presence of the officers. Green's bond was fixed at $2,000 and Overly's at $500. Sam Boyd,

Dotted Net Is Charming and Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT with the program of party frocks for the last several summers being mostly a matter of one printed chiffon frock after another, the idea of printed or embroidered cotton net suggests a most intriguing diversion.

The beauty about these very charming new quality-kind cotton nets which are now so smartly in fashion for evening wear is that they can be safely and successfully washed—no danger of colors "running" as heretofore. This, too, these nets drape ever so charmingly, at the same time having enough body in them to stay crisp and fresh looking on the warmest evening.

Very newest printed nets carry the message that dots have appeared on fashion's horizon for midsummer evenings. For the slender woman the dress pictured is ideal. It is a "young" frock for slim and svelte youth, and later providing you're the type.

A particularly summery and actually washable duane cotton net fashions this lovely gown. Of course, you will be interested in the deep caplet collar which reminds us that shoulders are generally covered this summer if only with a wisp of a scarf, or a tiny drapery

DARE INTERPRETS the MODE

Electric blue paillettes form this smart evening gown, much flounced, and a peg-top silhouette. (Courtesy of Jeanne Lanvin, Paris.)

HOW can we make a Che-e-e "hat look like what it ain't?" "Well, by the way you wear it, my dear."

"Also by the trimmings." "You mean to say that I can take a dollar ninety five hat, put a seven dollar aigrette on it, and look like the Empress Eugenie herself?"

"Well, almost. That depends entirely upon the hat in the first place, then the material of it, and then the cut. As to the cut, there is absolutely no reason why a cheap felt can't be cut as well as an expensive felt, you see. But certain materials do not lend themselves much to cheapness, so be careful. Those that do, and have achieved a good cut, are the kind to look for in sale hats. Find a sale hat at no matter what price, of good cut, and of not too cheap LOOKING or FEELING material, and make your next step be how you put it on your own sweet little head."

And THAT, my darlings, is that, and applies to a fifty dollar hat as well as to a fifty cent one. How you put any hat on is up to you, and to your sense of chic and style. It's all a matter of practice, and failure can't be attributed to the cheapness of the hat.

And last, but not at all least, the trimming. Cheap trimming has a way of looking cheap. You can buy, or haul out of grandmother's trunks, lovely plumes and feather gadgets and what nots, that cost many times what the hat cost, pose them on your cheap hat, and achieve success. Further, if you have only ONE million dollar or franc gadget, you can pose the same one on several hats, and that will be one way of beating Dame Fashion at her own game?

OUR silhouettes are doing lots of things these days, and one of the most interesting versions is the peg-top one. That seems a prosaic way to describe the charming effect given by the peg-top tunic to the smart evening gown from Jeanne Lanvin. This evening gown is solidly spangled in vivid, electric-blue paillettes. Little caplets cover the shoulder loosely, and the tunic is formed of graduated flounces. The long and narrow underskirt is of spangled flounces too. This is one of those personality gowns, you know, rather than a style trend.

EVENING gowns are becoming "differentier and differentier" these days, and when you shop around for yours, the best "difference" you may aim for is the unusual silhouette. "N" with the great variety that there is nowadays, it isn't at all hard to get a becoming silhouette, as well.

If you can't make up your mind whether to go straight or curly in your evening coiffure, why not go both ways? Especially if the effect is as lovely as in the evening coiffure I sketched for you today, where the division between the straight hair above the forehead and the tightly curled hair on the back of the head is marked by a rough comb.

One guest particularly interested in the hair, a very handsome man, bearing the imposing name of Count Theodore Slavine. He clicked his heels together when he was presented, bowed from the waist, and kissed her hand. Still retaining it a moment, he leaned close to her and said: "You are the only really beautiful debutante in New York this year, Miss Pentland. We will dance later—yes!"

Phyllis liked the hint of accent in his speech and she liked his big, broad manliness. She hadn't seen so tall and broad a man since leaving her beloved California.

"I'll be awfully pleased to dance with you later," she responded, and saw him smile with lifted eyebrows at the evident sincerity of her tone. He passed on then, and Phyllis greeted countless other guests before the one she was most longing to see appeared in the archway of the room.

No Sign of Recognition

Kay Wolfe had been talking to her. "It's really a swell blowout, Marge. Not nearly so poisonous as most of them—cripes, I'm moving on. Here comes Dell Rogers, with a mouth full of tacky old jokes."

Phyllis laughed. Kay's slang always made her laugh, along from the street it was, racy and often naughty, but redeemed from vulgarity by Kay's samin manner and big eyes. Adele was just in front of John Gage, approaching Phyllis to say good evening. Phyllis took time to note that beyond a bare inclination of the head, such as she gave every guest, Mrs. Hatton gave no sign of recognition. The girl's heart beat fast and she hardly saw Adele, who stood there with outstretched hand.

"Hello, Marjorie—very grand, dame tonight, aren't you?" Phyllis recovered herself. "Adele, it's awfully nice of you to come." It was the time-worn formula, but into it went some of Phyllis' real excitement over the party.

"She has a nice line, hasn't she?" Adele spoke over her shoulder to John Gage, who was waiting his turn. "Do you know Mr. Gage, Marjorie? He's one of our most sought-after bachelors, fascinating because he hates women and always has some mysterious business affair. John doesn't like me—but I hope he's going to dance with me—"

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER VIII

Cinderella's First Ball

Phyllis was spared the necessity of answering this question by the appearance of Mrs. Hatton, dressed for the dance in black velvet and pearls, with a train of black tulle that swept several feet behind her on the floor.

"You look awfully sweet, Marjorie," her mentor cried sincerely, "really you do. I'm very proud to be presenting you tonight."

"You look very nice yourself," Phyllis retorted. "We're quite a study in black and white, aren't we?"

During the drive to the Mayflower Club Phyllis wondered about John Gage. Mrs. Hatton had said she did not know him, and this might very well be true, even though he had been invited to the debut. New York society had grown so large, there was such a general exchange of invitation lists by hostesses that often a number of strangers appeared at a big dance. But she would watch just the same for any sign of recognition between them.

Up the red-carpeted steps of the Mayflower ballroom and into the smaller reception room where Phyllis Wood, dazzlingly pretty, was to be presented to the world as Marjorie Pentland. For one fleeting moment Phyllis called herself "Cinderella" and wondered when her clock would strike—but this was forgotten in the rush of people who soon began to appear. Miss Gilmore, indefatigable and gowned in the severest of black princess dresses, whispered names into her ear. A steady stream of men and women bowed over her hand, made some indistinguishable remark and passed on into the large ballroom.

One guest particularly interested in Phyllis, a very handsome man, bearing the imposing name of Count Theodore Slavine. He clicked his heels together when he was presented, bowed from the waist, and kissed her hand. Still retaining it a moment, he leaned close to her and said: "You are the only really beautiful debutante in New York this year, Miss Pentland. We will dance later—yes!"

"You look awfully sweet, Marjorie," her mentor cried sincerely, "really you do. I'm very proud to be presenting you tonight."

"You look very nice yourself," Phyllis retorted. "We're quite a study in black and white, aren't we?"

During the drive to the Mayflower Club Phyllis wondered about John Gage. Mrs. Hatton had said she did not know him, and this might very well be true, even though he had been invited to the debut. New York society had grown so large, there was such a general exchange of invitation lists by hostesses that often a number of strangers appeared at a big dance. But she would watch just the same for any sign of recognition between them.

Up the red-carpeted steps of the Mayflower ballroom and into the smaller reception room where Phyllis Wood, dazzlingly pretty, was to be presented to the world as Marjorie Pentland. For one fleeting moment Phyllis called herself "Cinderella" and wondered when her clock would strike—but this was forgotten in the rush of people who soon began to appear. Miss Gilmore, indefatigable and gowned in the severest of black princess dresses, whispered names into her ear. A steady stream of men and women bowed over her hand, made some indistinguishable remark and passed on into the large ballroom.

One guest particularly interested in Phyllis, a very handsome man, bearing the imposing name of Count Theodore Slavine. He clicked his heels together when he was presented, bowed from the waist, and kissed her hand. Still retaining it a moment, he leaned close to her and said: "You are the only really beautiful debutante in New York this year, Miss Pentland. We will dance later—yes!"

Phyllis liked the hint of accent in his speech and she liked his big, broad manliness. She hadn't seen so tall and broad a man since leaving her beloved California.

"Friendship is such a tepid relation for a beautiful woman and a man don't you think?" said the Count make a stunning couple, don't we, John?"

Gage disregarded her laughing words and bowed over Phyllis' hand. "I'm very happy to be here, Miss Pentland," he said formally. "Are you really?" Phyllis asked. "Most people, I think, come because they think they should."

"To see and to be seen," Adele murmured. There was a hush in the receiving line and the two newcomers could with propriety stand for a moment talking with the girl in whose honor the party was given.

Phyllis burned to know what John Gage was thinking, and it suddenly occurred to her to test him with a question. "Miss Rogers spoke of your mysterious business affairs, Mr. Gage. Has one of them taken you to California recently?"

"Oh, no," the answer came promptly. "It's been a year or so, since I was out on the Coast. Perhaps you'll dance with me now Adele. That music sounds like real jazz."

"Oh, it's devastating," Adele answered. "See you later, Marjorie."

They moved away together and Phyllis winked back the tears—mostly tears of weariness and excitement, but partly compounded of wonder that Gage should deliberately lie to her and regret that he had not asked her to dance. She had scant time to wonder, however, for Count Slavine was at her side begging for a dance.

"I'd love to dance," she said eagerly, "just let me ask Aunt Naomi for all right for me to go now."

Mrs. Hatton gave her gracious consent and Phyllis found herself clasped in the arms of the most experienced dancer she had ever partnered. All around her girls were being cut in upon, but Slavine's height and air of "hands off" kept Phyllis his partner for the entire number. As they waited for the encore he held her free hand lightly in his own.

"I have a feeling that we're going to be friends," he said, smiling at her.

"Oh, I hope so," the girl exclaimed.

"But not for long," he continued. "Friendship is such a tepid relation for beautiful woman and a man, don't you think?"

Phyllis blushed. "It is?" she asked in a low tone.

"But, of course. Don't pretend that you think men and women can be friends—that's one of the outmoded and childish things American girls like to fool themselves into believing. You're far too much intelligent for that, Miss Pentland. I can see. Shall we dance again? I'll try to keep these young cubs away from you for another ten minutes at least."

Danger Threatens

He succeeded so well in monopolizing her that after half an hour Mrs. Hatton beckoned to her. "Marjorie, dear," she said in a low tone, "you must let Count Slavine monopolize you in this way. He's well, he's rather a fortune hunter—poor member of the old Russian nobility and all that. He's all right for an escort or dancing partner now and then, but you must dance with others, too?"

Slavine, as though aware of what was going on, watched them anxiously from a little distance and Phyllis felt uncomfortable. Approaching her were John Gage and Adele and she turned to them with relief.

"Having a good time?" she asked. "Very, only John danced about three steps with me and then let that little chump of a Freeman cut in. I haven't been able to escape until this minute when I saw John getting ready to say good-by and pounced on him."

Somehow Phyllis was glad that John had not spent all his intervening time with Adele, but her relief was short-lived. Adele lighted a cigarette, blew a careless cloud of smoke toward the ceiling and exploded her bomb—"By the way, Marjorie, I've been meaning to ask you, and this is as good a time as any—what was really back of that disappearance of yours a couple of weeks ago—the papers made an awful fuss about it, I remember."

Phyllis' face went white underneath her rouge, and then automatically, as on another occasion she looked up at John Gage, praying him with desperate eyes for a way out of this predicament.

To Be Continued Tomorrow

To cook mushrooms for creaming or scalloping, remove thin peeling cover with water and boil gently in covered pan five minutes.

It is always a good plan in the fall to select some of the best carrots, turnips and beets to be kept over for growing seeds. Pack them in a box of sand and keep in the cellar, occasionally moistening the sand so that the roots will not shrivel.

Chocolate stains may be removed from table linen by sprinkling the stain with borax, then pouring boiling water through the linen.

To keep paint fresh in uncovered cans fill them to the top with water, after stirring the paint thoroughly. When needed, pour off the water with care.

Cards Move Out Seven Games Ahead in Race For Pennant

Double Victory Over Reds Just About Finishes Giants

BY COPELAND C. BURG
INS Sports Writer
NEW YORK—Laughing at life in general and the New York Giants in particular, the St. Louis Cardinals moved out seven games ahead in the National League Sunday. Their hilarity was at the expense of the Cincinnati Reds, who were flopped by the champions in two shut-outs, 3 to 0 and 7 to 0. Phil Rhee held the Reds to three hits in the opener and Sylvester Johnson only gave seven in the evening bill. The Cards played perfect ball and just about smothered the Giants' idea to be serious about things.

Braves Blank Giants
Inability of McGraw's men to hit the pitching of Ben Cantwell was responsible for a 5 to 0 beating they took from the Boston Braves. Four safeties were all the Giants could collect and they failed to get a man as far as third base. "Bread" and Herman were the only Robins who could hit Jumbo Jim Elliott and the down-trodden Phils won, 8 to 4. But old Jack Quinn came to the rescue of Hollis Thurston in the night chapeau, the Robins snatching it, 7 to 2.

The Cubs lost their seventh in a row, falling before Pittsburgh, 5 to 0. When Tommy Thevenoz cracked a double to score Piet in the eighth.

Cochrane Beats Boston
Although out of 10 to 8, Mickey Cochrane gave the Athletics a 5 to 3 advantage over the Boston Red Sox, with a homer and a double that accounted for four tallies.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig could not get a single, much less a homer, off Al Crowder and Washington pushed back the New York Yankees, 4 to 1. Crowder was touched for only six clouds.

Chicago's Sox only hit Vic Sorrell six times but the Detroit pitcher walked eleven, giving the hose a 4 to 1 triumph.

Harder and Hudlin were more effective than six moundmen used by the St. Louis Browns in two battles and Cleveland grabbed both games, 7 to 5, and 13 to 2. Hudlin got three hits himself. Scores by innings:

GEHRIG GOING AFTER ANOTHER MAJOR RECORD

Larruping Lou Seeks To Better Everett Scott's Mark

NEW YORK—With the remark that "the first thousands games are the hardest," Buster Lou Gehrig, stocky first baseman of the New York Yankees, is pointing toward a new major league record for consecutive playing.

The pickled-heel fender completed his first 1,000 games without a break in Detroit recently, and now has less than 300 games to go to shatter the "iron man" record of Deacon Everett Scott. The Deacon played in 1,507 consecutive contests for the Red Sox and Yankees before his aching legs had to be rested.

About mid-season next year, if he continues in the line-up without a break, Hungry Lou will pass the mark of 1,103 consecutive games set by Joey Sewell, former Cleveland star now with the Yankees.

Matter of Luck

Gehrig would like to break Scott's record, but is attaching no great importance to the task. He says:

"Naturally, I'd like to go right along and establish a new record for consecutive games, but that is pretty much a matter of luck. A wild pitch hitting you on the wrist might stop a run of consecutive games. So might a hard hit grounder that might take a bad hop. You might slide to base and wrench an ankle. There is entirely too much luck involved for me to do any speculating now."

Gehrig is one of the few New York bums who made a major league grade in their home town. Frisch stepped off the campus at Fordham to win glory at the Polo Grounds. Gehrig came to the Yankees from Columbus, Ohio, winning more than local fame as the star slugger at High School of Commerce. After signing with the Yankees Lou was shipped off to Hartford for development. He was a sensation there.

Always 300 Hitter

Starting in 1926, his first year as a regular, Gehrig never has failed to win runs among the 300 hitters of the league. In '26 he hit 313 and followed in '27 and '28 with 375 and 344 respectively. He dropped to 300 in '29, but came back last year with a mark of 379.

Gehrig not only is a batter of high averages, but a deadly hitter in the pinches. He holds the American League record for driving runs home, having scored 173 then two years ago. Last year he was responsible for 174 runs. He and Ruth have waged some bitter dual for home run honors, but so far Gehrig has never been able to lead the Babe to the finish. Gehrig holds the world's series record for driving in runs with 9. He achieved this honor in 1928. He also holds the record for home runs in a single series, sharing the honor with Ruth. Both made 4 in the '28 rout of the Cardinals. Gehrig also holds the season long in most extra bases on long hits in one series. He registered 13 in 1928.

Gehrig rejoices in the knowledge that he was on one of the greatest teams in baseball history, the Yankees of 1927 and '28.

OUTDOOR IOWA

By H. J. METCALF
Director Information, State Fish and Game Commission

More than 100,000 bullheads were "planted" in Cass county streams near Atlantic recently, thereby assuring prospective fishermen in that locality some excellent fishing in time. The fish were transplanted from Cass county on Diamond lake, just north of Spirit Lake in trucks, being loaded to protect them against the heat.

There seems to be some confusion regarding the bag limit on the pheasants this year. The hunter cannot take the season limit in one day, as has been generally supposed, he being limited to three imported pheasants each day of the open season. Section 1708 of the Iowa fish and game laws for 1931-32 covers this. Copies may be had by writing the fish and game commission.

Every county in southern Iowa last year received ringneck pheasants and eggs in varying amounts. The pheasants numbered 11,224 and the eggs 12,995. It is to be hoped the birds are doing fairly well, but they must be protected in order to insure hunting when the open season is declared. I am firmly convinced that there are enough real sportsmen in southern Iowa to see to it that these birds are not hunted out of season and are protected from predators and other forms of destruction.

I was stopped on the highway a few days ago near Iowa City by Burr Wolfe of Tiffin, Johnson county, who expressed considerable interest in pheasants. Mr. Wolfe said that in March, 1930, about two dozen pheasants were planted on his farm and from all appearances they were getting along famously. Contrary to the belief of many he says he has never found the birds destructive. While they eat some corn and small grain, this is offset by their destroying noxious weeds and insects. He said he saw a flock of pheasants which numbered about 24 recently. He reports good cover in his locality, and the birds scattered over about a mile and one-half of territory. Farmers in his locality are insistent that the birds be protected. In this connection it is interesting to note the number of insistent demands from western Iowa for pheasants with which to combat the grasshopper pest.

A WHITE MAN IS COLORED. A BLACK MAN IS NOT.

RAW WHEAT WAS CONVERTED INTO HOT BISCUITS IN 12 MINUTES.

AMBERGRIS - ESSENTIAL IN THE MANUFACTURE OF PERFUME - IS ITSELF EVIL-SMELLING

Yes, a WHITE man is colored. Fresh colored. A black man is sick mammals.

Little Joan Whisnant, of 203 Third Street, Sand Springs, Oklahoma, was born without arms but runs and plays like other kids and is happy despite her physical handicap. In some ways she can accomplish more with her educated toes than the average 7-year-old boy or girl can with hands. She eats, writes and even sews with her feet.

Ambergris, that wax-like substance which makes sick whales more valuable than healthy ones, is worth twice as much as gold in spite of its foul odor. It is essential in the manufacture of some of the costliest perfumes. The ash-colored and sometimes yellow or black substance is often found floating in tropical seas in masses weighing up to 250 pounds.

It is believed to originate solely from diseased whales, the floating masses being broken off from the animals.

Baseball's Chiefs Now Turn To Rebuilding Task For 1932

NEW YORK—With the major league seasons fast waning and the also-rans merely going through the motions of playing out the schedule, the chief topic of conversation on many clubs is rebuilding for 1932.

At Cincinnati, one of the few bright spots in a season of disappointments has been the development of Earl Cressler, the young outfielder. His batting has shown marked improvement and he is counted upon as a regular for next season.

Record also believes it has one of the coming stars of the National League in Silas Johnson, right-handed pitcher who came up from Columbia. Johnson's record in the minors has been impressive, but he has lost at least a dozen tough games this year and undoubtedly would have made much better showing had he been with a stronger club. Dan Hooley, pilot of the Redlegs, is especially "sweet" on this fellow.

Tony Cuccinello, the hard-hitting infielder of the Reds, may be seen in another uniform next year. Tony's batting has been satisfactory but he lacks speed.

Mickey Heath, the first baseman who came to Cincinnati from Hollywood, did not have much of an opportunity to strut his stuff before Queen City fans this year because of an unfortunate injury which kept him out of the lineup for the greater part of the season.

snipe on Daly's Lake, three and one-half miles north of Lyons. This is contrary to the general belief that snipe are fast disappearing. The snipe woods are also plentiful in that locality.

Tom Johnston, supervisor of deputies, Iowa fish and game commission, says there seems to be some confusion and criticism of the department for enforcing the law which prohibits shooting a rifle on or across any of the public waters of the state. This law was passed by the 43rd general assembly and became effective July 4, 1929. The purpose of the law was purely a matter of safety for the public and also for stock in pastures bordering on streams and lakes. Bullet from rifles striking the water at an angle will not go into the water, but will glance, or ricochet, and travel for great distances. Stock has been killed in this way and serious results to individuals has resulted. Mr. Johnston says that this law will be strictly enforced as a matter of safety and he asks the public to cooperate in its enforcement. The law in no way prohibits the use of a gun over state waters.

A crew of twelve men, working with Otto Klinge, game warden in the Clinton territory, rescued thousands of game fish from Lower lake near Camanche, on Beaver Island, a resort in former years which was a veritable paradise for sportsmen in that locality. Approximately 50,000 fish were removed from the lake recently owing to low water. The fish were placed in the Mississippi. A later haul from this same lake netted 5,000 carp and 10,000 bullheads.

Douglas McCabe will become director of athletics at Loyola, Chicago, this fall.

DEMPSEY MEETS 5 FOES TODAY

RENO, Nev.—(INS)—Carrying a few memories of his barn-storming tour of the northwest, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion now hitting the come-back trail, will swap punches with five heavyweights this afternoon.

Both of Jack's fists were somewhat swollen from punching the assorted group of fighters in the northwest. He also had a lame ankle and a severely discolored eye.

Dempsey's opponents today will be "Cowboy" Eddie Burns, of Davenport, Iowa; Sam Baker, Douglas, Ariz.; Tom Sawyer, Delta, Colo.; Hans Birke, Oakland, Cal.; and Jimmy Flinker, Vallejo, Cal.

FRIENDS ALMOST 'MOB' NET CHAMP

BOSTON.—(INS)—"The man who came back," Francis Quinnet, had a day off with the "wife and kiddies" today, after being almost "mobbed" by friends when he stepped off the train returning from Chicago, where he won the United States amateur golf championship. Over 3000 friends jammed the platform of the south station to cheer Quinnet, who won the title seventeen years ago from Jerome Travers, and welcome him home after his victory over Jack Westland, 24-year-old Chicago youth.

Quinnet was met at the station by his wife and two children, Barbara 11, and Janice, 7, where a parade of 100 automobiles led by the Golf King, were through the streets of Boston and then to Quinnet's home in Newtonville.

MCMILLEN MEETS LONDOS TONIGHT

CHICAGO.—(INS)—Jim Londos, generally recognized as champion heavyweight wrestler, will meet McMillen, former University of Illinois football star, in the big attraction of a card scheduled for Soldier Field tonight.

They meet in a finish match, two falls out of three, with Londos a prohibitive favorite. He won two previous encounters from the youth who gave up pro football and civil engineering for the more lucrative sport of wrestling, but they both were one-fall matches. Londos is outweighed about 25 pounds, with McMillen weighing 225.

NEW JOBS

Among the new football coaches this fall are two men who weren't football coaches before. E. C. Hayes, Indiana, was track coach there, and George Veemaker of Iowa State was cage coach at Michigan.

The officials of the Sharkey-Walker fight—each of the three having guessed different—illustrate how good baseball umpires really are.

Against the Red Flash team of Muscatine which the former won 8 to 0, and the second contest won over the same team, 2 to 0.

The Medical Trust Exposed

BY NORMAN BAKER

This is the 33rd installment of a serial article which will appear daily in the Midwest Free Press

Making Gold Bricks

"But prying eyes discovered that during all this period, according to the report of Biddle's brother Jake, who superintends the brickyard for Biddle himself, the brickyard didn't produce any brick. Not a wheel was turned, not a fire started, yet $8,000 worth of brick making material was charged up, and of this nearly $3,500 was for coal."

In analyzing the prison water bill, Savage could not refrain from taking a shot at the prison soup. "Some claim that this remarkable consumption is due to the large amount of water used in Biddle's soup," says the statement.

The water bill in 1922 is stated to have been $14,307.05, the average prison population, 2,174, making the water charge $6.58 per capita. The statement points out that the flat rate for water in Leavenworth is $6 a year for unlimited use of three faucets for a family. Quoting the statement again, "at the nominal meter rate of 5 cents for 1,000 gallons, Biddle's population paid for 360 gallons per capita per day."

Turning from the water charges, the Savage statement proceeded to more or less scramble the egg statistics alleged to have been in the Biddle report.

"The report shows 3,007 dozen eggs delivered to the steward from the farm and 39,720 dozen purchased at 30 cents a dozen, a total of $11,600 charged for eggs purchased," reads the statement. "The total of 42,727 dozen eggs would have given each of the population of 2,174 men, 235 eggs. As a matter of fact eggs were practically unknown. Eggs were served a few times at Easter time. It is probable that not over twelve eggs per capita were served in the entire year."

The Chicken Graft

"The report shows a flock of 4,055 chickens, all ages and sexes and a production of 3,007 dozen eggs; less than 9 eggs per chicken," continues the Savage statement. "The McNeill's island farm for the same period and a similar flock, shows a production of 54 eggs per chicken. Biddle shows an expenditure of $560 for special chicken feed, to stimulate egg-laying. Thus 32 cents per dozen eggs produced was spent for laying stimulants."

The Savage statement analyzed the figures in four departments devoting considerable space to charging that the sum spent in repairs of the boilers would have installed a new plant of 500 horse power. The statement charged that after spending $13,000 for repairs, the boiler plant was wrecked to make way for a new plant for which $92,500 had been appropriated. Savage tells the Department in his statement that through the influence of Representative Daniel R. Anthony, Jr., and expressed the opinion that one reason for the desire to transfer him to St. Elizabeth's hospital was to be found in the fact that reports of prison conditions getting to the outside of the institution were embarrassing Representative Anthony in his political activities.

Making one allowance for the natural prejudices which a prisoner may develop for the prison management, and further allowance for the fact that the Savage statement admittedly was based on his ability to remember the facts and figures after his papers had been taken from him, it appears that his report finally impressed the department of justice. The following spring Mrs. Wildebrandt sent for him and he has been in touch with the department since date.

The True Spirit Of Progress

Our Friends and Neighbors

The greatest obstruction to community progress is the lack of community loyalty that is displayed by a great many of our leading citizens who persist in unnecessarily spending their money in other cities.

Some of our leading citizens who profess to be community boosters seem to have a penchant for patronizing firms removed from Muscatine. There seems to be a certain fascination in buying out of town—going to Davenport, Des Moines or Chicago for the things that can be obtained right here in Muscatine for the same amount, and in many cases less money. To make your purchases out of town is not to violate the law; it isn't even a breach of propriety. But it is not good business.

A genuine interest in our community is best displayed by the loyalty we show to our friends and neighbors. The merchants appearing on this page are "Our Friends and Neighbors," by reason of residence here and participation in activities that aid Muscatine's progress. These merchants were here before the streets were paved, before new schools were built, and before our home-town really became the thriving little city it is today.

A citizen's share of the money you spend with them goes toward civic improvements—toward school maintenance, churches, public buildings, police protection and community welfare. Dollar for dollar they give you better quality, more personal, neighborly service than you will get elsewhere. And the dollar you spend in Muscatine has a chance of coming back to you.

A good thought to keep in mind is: "MUSCATINE FIRST."
